In Memory Of Thomas Sturgis
Feb. 16, 1958-Nov. 1, 1974

Three were here and none were dead.
Then one was here and two were dead.
Now no one's here; the three are dead.
The three were one, and the one was thee.

Thee one;
Thee one we knew would hang on the longest.
Why? Because it wasn't just a machine that held him together.
It was you, me, and him.
Tom held on to everything he had, couldn't have had, might have, or wouldn't have had.
Tom held on till when? To where? To whom?
He held till night turned to day, and day
until night.
He held on till the moon changed to a new phase,
till the sun rose and till it set, again, and again.

And on the day he died...
What day? What month?
How soon we forget, but we never forgot, and never will forget him:
His face, mouth, eyes, and hands,
And most of all we won't forget his smile.
Thee smile!

the challenge

to face the many opportunities in today's modern agriculture, to pursue the noblest of all arts . . . the decision is yours!

Yes, only you can make the choice. And if you decide to go into some phase of agriculture, you must realize that success depends on many factors. The most important factor, of course, is you! You must be familiar with everything from the latest insecticides and herbicides, to capital investments, depreciation, and taxes. You must keep abreast of market quotations, machinery improvements, crop and livestock production methods, and a host of other contributing factors.

Is it worth the effort? You bet it is! You measure your working room by acres, not by square feet. You measure your value by a solid investment in land and equipment. You can lead a rich, full life and face the future as an independent individual--your own boss--under our American system of free enterprise. Best wishes from Avco New Idea, Coldwater, Ohio.
